

Bill Barich and Imelda Healy

We bid a temporary adieu to the writer Bill Barich and his partner, artist Imelda Healy on their departure to California, where they will live for the next year or so while television company giant HBO, makers of The Sopranos and The Wire turn Bill's script set in the world of horseracing into another TV blockbuster. Don't forget! You heard it here first in this year's programme.

Book Donations

The lifeblood of the Festival HQ at 26 Ranelagh is book sales, and for more than a year now, we have been sustained by the generosity of the literate citizens of Ranelagh. Books have arrived in pairs, in piles, in plastic bags, cardboard boxes and in a trunk, and most have left in the loving hands of new owners.

Francesco Polito

Francesco moved to Ranelagh from Inchicore about five years ago and gravitated quickly towards helping out with Ranelagh arts activities. Perhaps the fact that his partner is Helen Minnes, our secretary, nudged him in our direction.

Francesco is always available to put up posters and banners, collect admission at events, and, being Italian, he is an expert at pouring wine at our receptions. He loves living in Dublin and with his partner Helen (who is from the Netherlands), and is a regular gig-goer and music festival fan.

Earlier this year he started giving a series of nutrition classes at Festival HQ at 26 Ranelagh. This raised one or two eyebrows as to why an arts festival would dabble in such an activity, but their spectacular popularity with the Ranelagh public has ensured that they will continue in the autumn.

Clara Joinery

Many thanks to Dan Conroy of Clara Joinery for the handsome new French windows upstairs in Festival HQ at 26 Ranelagh.

Tommy and Jimmy Cullen

Special thanks to Tommy and Jimmy Cullen for the wiring job in the new studios and shop at Festival HQ at 26 Ranelagh.
